

| RECON AREA |                                                                                                                                        |
|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| ITEM       | METHOD                                                                                                                          |
| 1          | Separate recon and security elements if objective restricted in area, clearly defined, with specific avenues of approach |
|                   | Conduct leader recon                                                                                                            |
|                   | Designate positions for security team                                                                                           |
|                   | Security teams move on covered &amp; concealed routes to positions                                                              |
|                   | After security in place, recon element departs ORP to recon objective                                                           |
|                   | After objective recon, recon element &amp; security return to ORP and disseminate information OR                         |

| RECON AREA |                                                                                                                                                                 |
|-------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| ITEM       | METHOD                                                                                                                                                   |
| 2          | Combine R&amp;S elements if objective not clearly defined and located, and terrain does not permit plt to secure objective area or if detection possible |
|                   | One R&amp;S team stay in ORP to act as reaction force in case of contact                                                                                 |
|                   | Several R&amp;S teams recon separate parts of obj, then link up at ORP                                                                                   |
|                   | 2 R&amp;S teams use ORP as release point, then link up at point on far side of objective                                                                 |
|                   | 1 R&amp;S team w/one follow on security team to follow, acts as quick reaction force; entire unit departs when recon complete                            |

| RECON AREA |                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| ITEM       | METHOD                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 4          | Recon objective by long range surveillance if possible; short range surveillance if required by METT-T; avoid detection                                                                                 |
|                   | Techniques: observe/collect/record information about enemy/use binosWell-rehearsed planCover movement w/battlefield noiseEstablish control measures, alternate routes, fire support |
| Notes:     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                |